Janus Henderson Global Equity Income Fund awarded “Recommended” rating by Lonsec

28 February 2018

The Janus Henderson Global Equity Income Fund (Fund) has recently been awarded a “Recommended” rating by research firm, Lonsec Research (Lonsec)*.

Launched in May 2015, the Fund is managed by the Janus Henderson Investors’ Global Equity Income team (Team), led by Alex Crooke, and is designed to be a core holding for clients.

As stated in the Lonsec product review report “Lonsec’s conviction is underpinned by the quality and experience of the lead investors and the differentiated investment approach centered on core income positions and a contrarian element targeting capital growth.”

Notably, Lonsec believes the Fund may offer greater capital growth potential, owing to a more total return philosophy, than traditional income peers.”

Matt Gaden, Head of Distribution at Janus Henderson Australia, said:

“The Fund has a flexible, benchmark unaware, global approach that can exploit value and income opportunities from different markets as conditions shift.”

The Fund seeks to deliver regular quarterly distributions with the potential for long-term capital growth through its investment in companies that the Team have identified as having the potential to generate strong and growing levels of free cash flow. The Fund is actively managed, typically holding between 50-80 companies diversified across geographic regions and industrial sectors.

The Fund also has a “Recommended” rating from Zenith Investment Partners[^], and was recently added to the AMP North and MyNorth platforms.
